Created 21 Nov 1978
Revised 19 Mar 2013
Reviewed 17 Oct 2018

The Campbell County Public Library District (hereafter, "Library") and its Board of Trustees (hereafter, "Board") were established by a petition of the citizens of Campbell County and subsequent act of the Campbell County Fiscal Court in September 1976 under the Kentucky Revised Statutes (173.710-800).

This Board now resolves that the following Bylaws be adopted by majority vote of its members.

Article I (Purpose)

The successor shall fulfill the term of the departing Member.

Article IV (Quorum and Voting)

Section 1. A majority of the Members shall constitute a quorum and a quorum shall be necessary for the transaction of any official business. If the quorum consists of three members of the Board, their vote upon any official business brought before them must be unanimous.

Section 2. Each member of the Board shall be entitled to one vote on all matters. No voting shall be done by proxy.

Article V (Election of Officers)

Section 1. The Officers of the Board shall be a President, a Vice-President, a Secretary, and a Treasurer.

Section 2. Officers shall be nominated by a Nominating Committee selected by the President. Additional nomination(s) will be permitted from the floor after the Nominating Committee has reported but before final action is taken.

Section 3. All elected Officers shall serve for a term of two years and until their successors have been elected and qualified. Officers are eligible to succeed themselves.

Article VI (Duties of Officers)

Section 1. The President shall preside at all meetings of the Board and is eligible to vote on all matters coming before the Board. The President shall appoint all special committees of the Board and can serve as an ex-officio member at any special committee meeting. The President oversees the preparation all agendas, conducts all meetings in an orderly manner, and performs generally those duties of a presiding officer.

Section 2. In the absence of the President, the Vice-President shall perform all the duties and assume all the responsibilities of the President at a regular or special meeting of the Board.

Section 3. The Secretary shall oversee the keeping of accurate accounts of all the proceedings of Board meetings to include records of attendance of Board members; notification of any member who has missed three regular meetings in any one year of his/her term; and notification of any member of his/her automatic resignation upon missing four regular monthly meetings in any one year of his/her term. The Secretary shall ensure the safekeeping of all official minutes and other official records of the Board. The Secretary shall perform all the duties and assume all the responsibilities of the President in his/her absence and in the absence of the Vice-President at a regular or special meeting of the Board.

Bob's Rules Of Order

*AS ADOPTED BY THE
CAMPBELL COUNTY PUBLIC LIBRARY
BOARD OF TRUSTEES
17 OCT 2018*

Introduction

Robert's Rules of Order, published in 1876 and taken primarily from the rules of conduct for the United States House of Representatives, is a set of rules for use in non-legislative assemblies throughout the country. Even though Henry Roberts sought to make these rules less onerous, they are nonetheless difficult to follow and unwieldy for most public library board meetings.

According to the preface in Robert's Rules of Order, "parliamentary law is a complex subject... [and] the expertise of a professional parliamentarian is necessary to interpret this book. ...very few attorneys have credentials in parliamentary law, and the organization should not seek to obtain both skills in one person."

In 1980 the Kentucky Attorney General opined that library boards may adopt their own rules of procedure. [OAG80-216] However, most boards' bylaws state that the Library Board of Trustees will follow Robert's Rules of Order in conducting its meetings. Therefore, the need arose to create a set of procedures that will work in the informal atmosphere of most library board meetings while still maintaining a business-like structure for a public body. This set of procedures is so simplified it can no longer be called a version of Robert's—hence the name Bob's Rules of Order. It has a genesis in the formal dictates, but blends in actual practice as observed in many Kentucky public library board meetings. Use it as you will in adopting your own rules of procedure. [Note: if you design your own procedures, you must attach a written set to your bylaws. If you wish to use this set of procedures, you will need to attach them to your bylaws as well as they are not formally recognized.]

A public library board of trustees and the way it functions are governed by Kentucky Revised Statutes (KRS), the library's bylaws, the library's board policies, and parliamentary rules of order—in that order. Nothing in the bylaws may conflict with statutes; nothing in the board policies may conflict with the bylaws; nothing in the adopted rules of order may conflict with the board policies. Bylaws are considered so important that special requirements are set for changing them. These usually include advance notice and a larger-than-majority vote for the adoption of amendments. Board policies may be changed by a simple majority vote during an official meeting of the board. (The bylaws may state that the Board meets monthly, but day and time are better left to board policy. This allows for easily changing the set day and time should it become necessary as board membership changes.)

Parliamentary law rests on certain principles. Perhaps the most important is the principle of rights: the right of the majority ultimately to rule; the right of the minority to be heard; and the right of the individual to participate in decision making.

Definitions

CHAIR: The presiding officer of a meeting, regardless of office held.

PRESIDENT: The officer of the Board who usually chairs the meetings.

COMMITTEES: Committees are either provided for in the bylaws (Standing Committees) or appointed for a special purpose (Ad Hoc Committees). Their powers are limited to those specifically given them by the bylaws or by direction of the board. They report to the board and are not authorized to act on their own in the name of the library. Committee members are not limited to members of the governing board, but may include library staff, members of the Friends of the Library chapter, and/or citizens with skills and knowledge to contribute.

DEBATE: Debate is any spoken comment on the merits of a pending motion, whether or not a clear preference for or against the motion is expressed. Merely asking a question is not considered debate.

FLOOR: The position of persons other than the presiding officer of the right to have the attention of the group. Thus, when a motion is "on the floor," it is the topic to which the group should direct its attention. When a member "has the floor," he/she has the opportunity to speak and should be given attention.

MEETING: An official gathering of members in one place to transact business for a period during which there is no interruption longer than a recess.

MEMBER: A person duly appointed to the board, with the right to full participation, including the right to vote.

MOTION: A formal proposal by a member of the meeting in an open meeting, with a quorum present, that the board take certain action. The proposal is formal in that it has prescribed wording; it is also formal in that it is not casual. The motion must be made by a member, not a guest. ["Guest" includes both the library director and the regional librarian.] The motion must occur in the context of a meeting, not before or after or otherwise apart from a meeting.

QUESTION: When a member calls for the question, he/she is informally calling for a vote on a motion.

SESSION: One or more connected meetings transacting a single order of business.

TABLE: The "desk"—and, by extension, the care—of the secretary. Laying on the table means entrusting to the care of the secretary.

Officers of the Board

Officers of the board have additional, specifically defined duties listed in the Kentucky Public Library Trustee Manual, but only for the purpose of conducting meetings. Those duties are:

President: presides at or chairs the meetings. The title president is assigned by law. The president chairs the meetings. While s/he may be referred to as the Chair, it is correct usage only to describe the function of presiding over the meetings.

Vice-President: acts in the place of the president when necessary and presides at meetings when the president temporarily vacates the chair. If the president is going to be absent from a meeting, the vice-president will preside and the president cannot appoint someone else.

Secretary: is the legally recognized recording office, though in practice taking minutes may be delegated to someone else (such as an administrative assistant to the director). The secretary signs the minutes, but should not use the expression "respectfully submitted." When the minutes have been approved, the secretary should so note on them; if they are approved with corrections, the corrections should be made. The secretary is the legal custodian of the minutes.

In the absence of both the president and vice-president, the secretary conducts an election of a chair pro tem to preside temporarily.

In the absence of the secretary, a secretary pro tem should be elected.

Treasurer: is responsible for the library funds and keeping the board informed of all financial matters by monthly financial reports. The specific duties of the treasurer vary from library to library, but all must be bonded according to statute.

Motions

Business is conducted by acting on motions. A subject is introduced by a main motion and once this has been seconded and stated by the presiding officer, nothing else may be taken up until it is disposed of. Long and complicated motions should be submitted in writing, but must still follow the process above. The main motion requires a second, may be debated, may be amended, and requires a majority vote to pass. Making a motion or seconding a motion does not necessarily mean endorsement of the motion; it is merely allowing an opportunity for discussion to proceed.

While the main motion is being considered, other parliamentary motions, which affect either the main motion or the general conduct of the meeting, may be made. Those most frequently used are briefly described below in their most basic context; there are numerous exceptions and modifications according to Robert, but not to Bob. A chart follows for ready reference regarding these basic motions.

Amend: used when a trustee wishes to change, add, or omit words in the main motion. The motion to amend requires a second, may be debated, may have an amendment (second amendment) itself, and requires a majority vote.

Postpone: used to delay a motion until a more suitable time, until other decisions have been made or until more information is available. The motion to postpone must include a specific, future time for reconsideration. This motion requires a second, may be debated, may be amended, and requires a majority vote.

Lay on the Table or Table: used to temporarily lay aside action on the motion. This motion requires a second, may not be debated, may not be amended, and requires a majority vote.

Close Debate: used to end debate that has become lengthy or repetitious. This motion requires a second, may not be debated, may not be amended, and requires a 2/3 vote [4 of a 5 member board].

Kill the Motion or Postpone Indefinitely: used to remove the main motion from consideration without a direct vote on it. It is most likely to be used to dispose of motions on which the board feels it is prudent to avoid a direct vote. This motion requires a second, may be debated, may not be amended, and requires a majority vote.

Make Follow the Agenda (Orders of the Day): used to urge compliance with the adopted agenda, including times set for discussion of an item of business, if applicable. This motion does not require a second, may not be debated, may not be amended, and is a demand that must be automatically obeyed unless the rules in question have been suspended by a 2/3 vote of the board.

Take a Break or Recess: used to temporarily stop the meeting for a short period of time (cannot be overnight) without officially closing it. After a recess, the meeting is resumed at the point where it was interrupted. This motion requires a second, may not be debated, may be amended, and requires a majority vote.

Close Meeting or Adjourn: used to end the meeting. If there is a time set for adjournment and it is reached without further business on the agenda, the presiding officer may declare the meeting adjourned without a formal motion. A board member may move to adjourn the meeting at any time except when a speaker has the floor or a vote is in process. If the motion carries, the meeting is immediately adjourned. This motion requires a second, may not be debated, may not be amended, and requires a majority vote.

The following motions are considered incidental motions and are not bound to an order of precedence. They arise incidentally and are decided immediately.

Point of Order: used to enforce rules of procedure anytime a member of the board feels they are not being followed. The member says, "Point of order," and the presiding officer says "State your point of order." Upon hearing it, the presiding officer may say, "Your point is well taken" to "Your point is not well taken." This action does not require a second, may not be debated, may not be amended, and does not require a vote.

Divide Motion: used to break complicated motions into two or more separate motions. The motion must include precisely how the division must be made. Any other member wishing to change the proposed way of dividing the motion may do so by amendment. This motion requires a second, may not be debated, may be amended, and requires a majority vote.

Request for Information or Point of Information: used when a member wishes to be given more information on the matter under discussion. The presiding officer responds to the question or refers it to the proper person. This action does not require a second, may not be debated, may not be amended, and does not require a vote.

Reconsider: used to allow the board to consider again a motion on which a vote has been taken during that meeting. This motion must be made by someone from the prevailing side of the previous vote. A motion can be reconsidered only once. The first vote is on whether the motion should be reconsidered; the second vote is on the motion itself. This motion requires a second, may or may not be debated depending upon other considerations, may not be amended, and requires a majority vote.

Rescind or Annul: used to cancel a previously adopted main motion. It cannot be applied to a main motion that has been executed in its entirety or to any parts already executed. This motion requires a second, may be debated, may be amended, and requires a 2/3 vote or a majority vote with previous notice.

Debating the Motion

The presiding officer opens debate, on a debatable motion, by restating it and saying, "Are you ready for the question?" This is simply an invitation to discuss the issue and not a call for the vote.

The member making the motion speaks first. The presiding officer asks for a rebuttal. All members wishing to speak about the motion receive the opportunity to speak before any one member speaks for a second time. The maker of the motion, though he/she can vote against it, cannot speak against it during debate.

Decorum must be observed at all times during debate. It is the issues that are in question, not the motives or integrity of the individual members.

Debate can be ended by the motion to order the previous question, close debate, that debate cease, or other such words. Some motions have the effect of suspending debate even though that may not be their primary purpose—tabling discussion, for example.

MAIN MOTIONS are listed in order of precedence. A motion can be introduced if it is higher on the chart than the pending motion.

PURPOSE:	YOU SAY:	2ND?	DEBATE?	AMEND?	VOTE?
Close meeting (adjourn)	I move to adjourn	Yes	No	No	Majority

Voting

All votes of the library board must be done in open meetings with a quorum present. No member is allowed to explain his/her vote during the voting process; such an explanation is debate and should have been offered prior to the vote. A member must be present to vote, but need not have been present during the debate. Unless otherwise prescribed by the bylaws, the board may vote by any of the following methods.

General Consent avoids a formal vote on routine matter where there is no opposition. The presiding officer says, "If there are no objections (pause) ..." and declares the decision made. This is typically used for agenda, minutes, financial reports, etc.

Voice Vote, saying "aye" (yes) or "nay" (no), is the most common method used but should be avoided where more than a majority is needed.

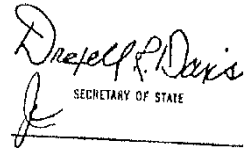

Show of Hands is a good alternative in small groups; Standing for larger ones.

Roll Call Vote is used if the presiding officer is unsure of the result or a member requests it. The presiding officer calls each member's name, recording a response of "yes" or "no." Upon completion of the roll call, the presiding officer reads aloud the names of those who answered in the affirmative and those in the negative, so that mistakes may be corrected. The minutes must record the names of all voting in the affirmative and in the negative. The presiding officer need only vote to break a tie.

Ballot voting is used only when required by the bylaws or when the board orders the vote to be taken by ballot. The typical procedure is to issue slips of paper upon which each member, including the presiding officer, writes his/her vote. The votes are then collected, counted, and announced.

Any vote taken should indicate whether it was unanimous (all present voting the same result) or, if a split vote, each member's name recorded with his/her vote. The results of a vote are recorded in the meeting minutes.

Abstaining rather than voting "yes" or "no" on a motion should be a rare occurrence. Trustees are appointed to express an opinion on the issues and abstaining expresses no opinion. If an abstention creates a tie vote, the motion fails to pass.
